Boy Scouts Pick Historic Site For Jamboree

NEW YORK—The Boy Scouts of America has selected Valley Forge, Pa., for its second national scout jamboree in 1950, Dr. Arthur Schuck, chief scout executive of the organization, announces.

Over 30,000 Boy Scouts from every state and all U. S. territories will camp together from June 30 to July 6, 1950 on the site notable as the winter encampment of George Washington and his continental army from Dec. 19, 1777 to June 19, 1778.

Valley Forge park is owned, maintained and preserved by the commonwealth of Pennsylvania. An invitation to hold the jamboree there was received from Governor James H. Duff by the Boy Scouts of America and accepted by its national executive board, Dr. Schuck announced.

Will Climax Crusade

The national jamboree will be the climax of the Boy Scouts' two-year crusade to "Strengthen the arm of liberty."

Gov. Duff's invitation to the Boy Scouts was accepted after a dozen sites in all sections of the United States were inspected by the engineering service of the Boy Scouts of America.

Gov. Duff's invitation addressed to Dr. Schuck follows:

"On behalf of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the Valley Forge park commission, I wish to extend to the Boy Scouts of America a cordial invitation to hold their jamboree at Valley Forge park during the summer of 1950 at such time as their executives may elect.

"I am fully acquainted with the Boy Scouts' program for the year 1950—to 'crusade to strengthen the arm of liberty'— and it was my privilege last February in an address at Gettysburg to sponsor this crusade for the commonwealth of Pennsylvania. I can visualize no more appropriate location for its climax than Valley Forge where the sacrifice and training were undergone on the basis of which our heritage of liberty was won.

"You may be assured of the full cooperation of the commonwealth and its agencies. The Valley Forge park commission will make available the facilities it has at its disposal during the period of preparation. Should your national executive board accept this invitation, the Valley Forge park commission will be designated as the coordinating agency of the commonwealth with which you should develop your detailed plans insofar as they involve the commonwealth."

To Occupy 600 Acres

Boy Scout officials announced that the jamboree camp will probably occupy 600 of the 2,033 acres in Valley Forge park. This would provide 32 sectional camps for a maximum of 40,320 scouts and adult leaders and a headquarters camp for 460 leaders. Valley Forge park is 20 miles northwest of Philadelphia and seven miles west of Norristown.

The first national scout jamboree was held in a 48-acre tent city on both sides of the Potomac river at Washington, D.C., from June 30 to July 9, 1937 at the invitation of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. It brought together 27,232 scouts and leaders whose fees paid for the expenses of the entire jamboree. President Roosevelt not only visited the huge jamboree camp but took part in the "stand still parade" in his honor on Constitution avenue. The scout campers lined the entire length of the historic avenue and were reviewed by the President as he drove between their lines.

Boy Scouts of twenty-four other nations were guests at the encampment.

Roy Paulette, A. H. S. product, is currently playing on the first-string Southern Conference football team of the University of Richmond. Paulette, a Senior, is the son of Mrs. Wilson L. Paulette. He was promoted to the top half-back post at Richmond this week, when it was found that Charlie Sutterfield, star of last year's Spider team, would not be eligible this season.

Paulette's cause was helped by his showing in last Saturday night's opening game against Randolph-Macon. With 12,000 fans in the stands, Paulette carried the ball but once, but in that attempt he made a fine gain of 23 yards.

Milk Diet Alone Found Sufficient For Human Needs

ITHACA, N. Y.—According to results of a survey conducted at Cornell university's animal husbandry laboratory, a diet of milk only may be sufficient to sustain healthy human life.

The nothing-but-milk-fed time experiment was tried on white rats. They were compared with an equal number of white rats fed the best ordinary diet. Milk lacks copper, iron, manganese, and iodine. These minerals were added to the diet of the milk-fed rats.

Have No Cancer

The rats on milk have lived as long as those on other food. The survivors' ages now are equivalent to the 80's and 90's in humans. Dr. Clive M. McCay, who conducted the experiments, says:

"These studies permit two conclusions. First, that mineralized milk can serve as the sole article of diet from weaning to death. Second, the milk of the cow is not injurious when fed throughout life to a strange species, such as the rat.

Man, who drinks cow's milk, is also a strange species. It is notable in the milk-fed rats that they had no more cancer, no more hardening of arteries, or other diseases, than rats on ordinary food. This ordinary food was the diet that man eats.

The first practical result of these experiments is milk bread, baked at Cornell and sold in Ithaca. This bread is also made by a few commercial bakers and by mental hospitals for their patients. Milk bread is not in any way a treatment for insanity. It is more nutritious than the bread that most mental hospitals have been able to afford. It is made with low-cost, dried skimmed milk. The advantage in the mental hospitals is that their aged patients eat lots of bread.

Animals Like Milk

"One question that has been debated for centuries," says Dr. McCay, "concerns milk as a suitable food for grown people. Many feel that milk is not a good food for the adult.

"I suppose this feeling starts from our knowledge that every animal stops nursing and eats the food of its parents. Have you ever asked yourself if this change is due to the unsatisfactory nature of the milk as a food for the adult, or as a means of protecting the health of the mother?

"Most adult animals will consume large amounts of milk if they can get it. Cats drink milk throughout life. Great Dane dogs drink milk when they weigh 120 pounds. Barge pigs learn to steal milk from cows. We even feed it to chickens and to trout. Certainly milk must be a complete food, or chickens and fish that never taste it naturally would not thrive upon it when they can get it."

Doctor Called to Treat Deer With Broken Leg

GREENVILLE, MAINE. — Dr. William Thompson, on vacation here, was rogued from his camp bed a few days ago to treat a pet deer.

The deer, named "Flag," appeared at a Moosehead lake camp with a broken leg late at night. Guests took up a collection to pay a doctor to come to Greenville to attend the fawn.

Then they learned that Dr. Thompson had registered a few hours earlier, they woke him and he applied splints.

Charles Harriman, game warden supervisor, told of seeing "a fair-sized buck deer actually playing with a pair of horses and some young cattle in the middle of a wide open pasture" at Westfield. Later, he said, the deer went into a farmer's yard and trotted past a dog and a haying crew into the woods.

Implement Company Marks Anniversary

Famed Manure Spreader First Built in 1889

The story of American free enterprise is graphically illustrated by two buildings at the Coldwater, Ohio, plant of the New Idea Division, AVCO manufacturing corporation, which this year is celebrating its golden anniversary.

One of these buildings (actually a series of connected buildings) covers over 15 acres and houses 705,000 square feet of manufacturing facilities. Newly expanded, it boasts one of the most modern foundries in the nation and a full complement of equally modern production machines and processes. It is the plant in which New Idea produces its specialized line of farm implements and equipment.

August Reutschilling, who has been with the company 47 years, stands nostalgically at the forge in the "museum"— a replica of the original plant, and it is the same forge at which he worked in his early days with the company.

Across the street is a small, wooden frame building occupying just 1440 square feet of space. In it are an old forge and several simple machines of the kind used for manufacturing in the early 1900's. This is an almost exact replica of the modest structure in which Joseph Oppenheim first began building his now famous manure spreader in 1899 in the nearby village of Maria Stein, Ohio. The communities for miles around Coldwater, and sales personnel throughout the nation, know it as the "museum."

Large letters painted on the front wall identify the building as "New Idea Spreader Works-1899." Inside are the four rooms in which Oppenheim and six helpers fashioned the first one of the most important and most widely used implements ever devised by the farm implement industry.

The first room as you enter was the "forge and machine room," containing a forge, hand shear, hand punch press, hand threading machine, small high speed drill, benches and water tank for cooling a gasoline engine.
